Egyptian bondage. They had made brick fold he said without straw and bared their back to the lash of the taskmasters, and they had been compelled to submit to all the barbarities and cruelties that a powerful and a heartless nation could inflict upon those who were their vassals and slaves. God had told Joseph that He would come and lead them out. Generation after generation had been born, matured to manhood and womanhood, developed into age and decrepitude, and still God had not come, until I have imagined that the people had begun to think that God had forwotten and that He would leave them forever to be the slaves of their masters, but God never forgets. When God tells you that He will bless you, and when He tells you He will damn you if you don't do it, He will damn you. His judgments may be delayed. He may keep you walting until your hair is gray. but his judgments will surely come or His rewards will follow. And at the appointed time, to the very day that God said He would come, He appeared under the leadership of Moses to lead them out, and old Pharaoh, the king, refused to let the people go and God was compelled to inflict him and the neople with plague after plague, and it was during the prevalence of one of these that the soliloquy between Moses and Pharaoh, of which my text is a fragment, occurred. It was the plague of frogs. Pharaoh sent for Moses and Moses said to him, "When shall I entreat the Lord that He take away the plague?" And he answered in words of my text, "And he said tomor row." I never thought that argued much for the common sense of Pharaoh, because he had sent for Moses ofttmes and answered his prayer and the plague had been stayed, and he knew from experience that there stood the only man in the nation that held the secret of the touch with God and that man of all men could utter the words that God would bear and God would stay His hand and remove the plague. "Tomorrow"-that's the ghost that will never come. Some of you are wearing mourning. That tells me that you have been to the graveyard. That tells me that you have left somebody out there that you wish was by your side now. Some of you are wearing mourn ing. That tells me that the hearse habeen down to where you live and stormed in front of your house. Listen! seme day there will be another funeral and it will be in your street, and the hearse will stop in front of your house. Some day the pallbearers will come to carry out an other body and you will be in the coffir and your name will be on the coffin plate and your name will be on the tembstone, and still there you sit. Say, listen! If God would just pull the curtain back and let some of you men and women see how close you are to the coffin you would turn pale. Some of you are so close to the hearse that if God would pull back the curtain you could reach out and touch it tonight. And there you sit without Jesus Christ as your Saviour. "And he said tomorrow."

is bright,
Be faithful, be earnest, temptations repel.
And you'll soon bid discounting the same and the same cannot harm you your future you'll soon bid this world a smiling farewell; ewell, follow sinners, I'm free from your blood,

your blood,
My messages are all delivered, I leave you with God,
I've pleaded I've entreated, but I could not compel,
And until the indement day breaketh I bid you farewell. "And he said tomorrow." God pity you In hell some of you will say, "My, how near I was to going forward. I stood in the street and listened. I was so near, pity you! "And he said tomorrow, Don't you. Don't you. (Copyright, W. A. Sunday.)

Tells women how to dry clean everything with gasoline and save $5.00.

It is very casy and inexpensive to dry clean and brighten all the ribbons, laces, yokes, neckties, silks, net work, satins, phirtwaists, kid gloves and shoes, furs, children's clothes, suits, caps, woolen garments, fancy vests, Swiss, lawn, organdle and chiffon dresses, draperies, rugs, in fact, any and everything that would be ruined with soap and water Get two ounces of solvite at any druggist and put it in two gallons of gasoline, where it immediately dissolves, Then immerse the goods to be cleaned: rub a little and out they come looking bright and fresh as new. You will find nothing fades, shrinks or wrinkles, requiring no pressing.

These few moments' work saves any household five to ten dollars. Try it and you will find dry cleaning just as easy as laundering. Your grocer or any garage will supply the gasoline and the drug store will furnish the solvite, which is simply a gasoline scap. Then a wash boiler or large dishpan completes your home dry cleaning outfit .-Advertisement.

NEW YORK HAS A NEW SONG CRAZE

Odd Ballad Said to Contain Many Pretty Strains.

Among the latest popular songs in New York, is a peculiar affair, called "A Girl in Your Arms is Worth Two in Your Dreams," which is quite a crase with the fair sex.

as various odd harmonies which form a rather pretty effect when sung. Following is a part of the chorus clipped from cony lust received:

A Girl In Your Arms Is > Worth Two In Your Dreams

For a girl in your arms is worth two in your dreams. You're best-tat - Ing, And I've been wait-ing For a long, long time, it seems; Cud-die up to me and I'll be in clo-ver

The chief cause of the sona's popuwity is that its text, while rather roantie in idea, contains no suggestive thought, but a sort of refined thoma that appeals to women.

Advance copies of the song have been received in some of the Cmaha 10-
